LASPOTECH To Propose Solutions To Food and Economic Problems in Nigeria

In a bid to fulfill its part as a tertiary institution committed to the development of the nation, the Lagos State Polytechnic has decided to discuss two pressing national issues – Food Sovereignty and Economic Development at its 16th Inaugural Lecture billed to hold on Wednesday, 12th November, 2008 at the School of Engineering Lecture, Theatre, Ikorodu Campus by 11am.

The Lecture titled “Irrigation for Food Sovereignty and Sustainable Economic Development” will be delivered by a Chief Lecturer in the Department of Agric Engineering, Engineer Ademola Isaac Olorunfemi (fnse).

Engineer Olorunfemi is an experienced engineer, who has committed most of his academic life to researching core engineering problems.

He currently oversees the business development arm of the Polytechnic - LASPOTECH KONSULT as Director.

Also expected at the event are top government officials and other stakeholders in all sectors of the economy.

The event will be chaired by the Rector, Mr. Ayodeji Babatunde Iginla, (MPhil, fipan).

The general public and members of the Polytechnic Community are cordially invited.
